NUMB. 5240

FRIDAY, JULY 20, 1744.

Yesterday arrived a Mail from Flanders.

Moscow, June 25.

H E Prince of Repnin is set out by the Empress's Order for Finland, in order to settle the Frontiers of that Province with the Swedish Communities. It is reported, that her Imperial Majesty has sent a Courier after the Marquis de la Chetardie, to demand her Picture out of the Lid of a Gold Snuff Box, which was formerly given him. The Departure of this Person has occasioned great Joy here, where his Value is insupportable. The Day before Yesterday, her Imperial Majesty returned in perfect Health from her Voyage, to the Monastery at Froizka.

June 23. Cardinal Addi had, on Tuesday last, audience of Leave of the King and Queen, and the Day his Majesty made him a Present of a Diamond of the Value of 30,000 Crusadoes. Mr. Addi, the said Nephew, who brought him the Ensigns of his Dignity, received from his Majesty a Present of Six Bars of Gold. The Day before Yesterday, there was an Auto di Fe, when seven Persons were burnt alive, several others sent to the Gallies, or into Banishment; amongst these last were, the Freemasons formerly banished. His Majesty assisted on this solemn Occasion from the Beginning to the Conclusion.

July 11. The two Armies maintain themselves in the same Position in the Neighbourhood of Veltre, despite of the Diseases that harrass the Austrians, and the miserable Famine that presses the Spaniards. We are in the Neighbourhood of this Capital, and to speak the Truth, under our very Walls, some Hundreds of Spanish Rebels and Austrian Hussars, who not only cut one another's Throats as often as they meet, which is a great Pardon, but plunder all the Peasants in the Neighbourhood. On Saturday last 700 Men, who had been enlisted in this City for the Service of his Catholic Majesty, marched out of the Gate of St. Paul, and being arrived at the Distance of One and a Half Miles, had their Swords and Fire Arms delivered to them; but they had scarce made the Mile out, when they were attacked by a Body of Hussars, who fled, and dispersed the rest. It is observed, that Hussars are more numerous than usual in our Neighbourhood. Yesterday, and to Day, some Troops of Horse appeared, and we make no doubt, that they will be followed by Infantry. Prince Lobkowitz has detached several small Bodies into the Abruzzo, where we have not heard with what Success. The Siege of Trevi is finished, and they have begun to destroy the Scaffolding, and every Thing else that could be of Use; it far exceeds all Expectations, and is look'd to be equal to any, even the finest Performances of Chevalier Bernini. The Academy of the Arcadians will be assembled To-morrow, for the first Time, since the Death of Mr. Lorenzini.

July 25. On Sunday last the Duke and the Co-Regent, were present at the performing Te Deum in the Cathedral Church of this City, on Account of the Empress's passing the Rhine, and went immediately afterwards to visit the Empress Dowager, who also caused Te Deum to be sung on the same Occasion. Her Majesty ordered Mr. Moroëski to continue his Journey to Presbourg, in order to present Count Palatin of Hungary, with the Standards and Ketts, lately taken from the French, as a Testimony of Her Majesty's Gratitude towards the Hungarian Troops; whom all these Successes are very justly attributed.

Head Quarters of the Austrian Army at Trimbach, dated July 17, 1744.

The Lieutenant Field-Marshal Baron Berenclau was detached, on the 13th, with the Van-Guard and the Service, excepting only the Hussars of Felkutz, which remained with the grand Army in the Camp at Lauterbourg. In the mean time, the Generals of the Army had detached, from their Camp behind the Rhine, 12 Squadrons of Horse, 600 Hussars, and 1000 Dragoons, with a View to have surrounded Prince Esterhazy, who had taken Post with 800 Horse at Benheim. The Chevalier d'Aigle, Governor of Fort Lewis, having received Orders to second that Enterprize, made a Detachment of 5 or 600 Men from his Garrison, in order to take Prince Esterhazy in Flank. As the Distance from Lauterbourg to Benheim, is much the same as from Benheim to the Enemy's Retrenchments, the Van of General Berenclau's Army arrived at the very instant that they were about to have attacked Prince Esterhazy on all Sides. General Berenclau instantly ordered 1000 Horse he had with him to charge the Enemy, and, at the first time, gave them Directions to secure the Banks of the Rhine; which they did so effectually, that the Detachment from Fort Lewis could not get back to that Fortress, but were obliged to retire with the rest towards the Motta.

As the Enemy had Abundance of little Villages on their Rout back to their Camp, they made a very orderly, and, to say the Truth, a very judicious Retreat; for posting their Foot in the Holes, they made a prodigious Fire from thence till their Horse got through the Towns; and these, in Return, drew up at the End of each Village, and faced us, till their Foot scoured off to the next; which, however, did not hinder us from pursuing, and taking Abundance of Prisoners, so that their Loss much exceeded ours, which might be about 30 Men. We continued our Chace till within Gun-shot of their Retrenchments. On the 14th and 15th General Berenclau made himself Master of Two Redoubts, which intirely compleat the Blockade of Fort Lewis on the Side of the Rhine; and his Troops had likewise several Rencounters with the Enemy's advanced Posts.

On the 16th the grand Army marched forward, and occupied a Camp equally agreeable and commodious, near Buhel. The Prince established his Head Quarters at Trimbach, where we are this Day to remain. The Enemy has about a March the Start of us, covered indeed by the River Motta, and are employed in restoring the old Lines of Higuenau; tho' we are not quite sure that they will wait for us there, since we are well informed, that when this Point was deliberated in a late Council of War, Opinions were divided; some insisting, that they ought not to change their Position, and others maintaining, that they should be more secure, if they retired behind the Sorau. We are apt to think they will make the latter their Choice; the rather, because the best Part of their Baggage is already gone to Strasbourg. There arrive daily, in our Camp, Abundance of Deserts, from whom we learn these and many other Particulars, some of greater, and some of less Importance. It is reported, that a Revolt has lately happened in the Duchy of Bar, and that some Stirs have likewise fallen out in Lorrain; but, as there is no mention made of Time or Place, we do not give much Credit to them.

Extract of a private Letter from the same Place, and of the same Date.

The Gross of the Army has encamped since Yesterday at a Quarter of a League from Trimbach; the Grenadiers, under the Orders of General D'Uin, are a little farther advanced at Bihel. General Berenclau is still farther above Fort Lewis, having cut off all Communication between that Place and the Enemy. By this Position the last of these Bodies is in a Condition to be sustained by the second; and the third, which is the Gross of the Army, can succour both the first and second. General Nadafti was Yesterday sent for to the Head Quarters, where he received Orders to march this Day to Werth, a little Town seated on our Right, in order to dislodge the Enemy, and fix himself in that Post. The Prince has reconnoitered that Place, as on the 14th he went in Person to reconnoiter Fort Lewis, and the Post of General Berenclau.

C O U N T R Y N E W S.

Extract of a Letter from Ipswich, dated July 16, 1744.

On Saturday last a melancholy Affair happened at Aldborough in Suffolk: The Pilots seeing some Ships coming, they, to the Number of Six, took a Boat, and went to see if they did not want Assistance; but the First they saw did not, but the Second put out a Signal for one, and was then under English Colours; and when they got within the reach of the Speaking Trumpet, one of the Crew spoke to the Pilots in good English, and told them they wanted a Pilot; upon which the poor Fellows rowed towards the Ship, and when they came just under her Bow, they found themselves betray'd, for she was a French Privateer, who threw a Rope which they did not catch, and without any further Provocation, they fired down into the Boat; one Man was shot in the Forehead by a Ball, which went out at the back Part of his Head, who never groaned after; a Second was shot in the Back, who lived about twelve Hours after, and then died; and a Third was shot thro' the Arm, but whether he will be saved is uncertain; the other three being'd hard for their Lives, and offered to go on board; but notwithstanding such Submission, the merciless Villains still continued firing; upon which they fell down in the Boat, and let her drive towards the Shore, which made the Privateer's Crew think they had been all kill'd; for after the Boat was drove a great Distance from the Ship, one of the Men look'd up, and thought they should be able to get a Shore, before she could come within Gun-shot of the Boat again; accordingly the three that escaped, got to their Oars, and so soon as the Privateer saw it, she tacked and fired with her Carronade and Swivel Guns, but did not hit them; she had ten of each, and is supposed to be the Susannah, that has taken so many Prizes lately; all the Inhabitants, as well as the Pilots, are under great Concern, for they are in the utmost Danger of losing their Lives, as well as their Fortunes; within this three Days two other Privateers have been seen on the Coast.
